OPEN CALL: COMMUNICATION DESIGNER WANTED
TRANSDISCIPLINARY PROJECT EXPERIENCE / CONDITIONS TO BE DISCUSSED

Hidden Stories

An audio-visual exhibition

Referat für feministische Politik (ÖH Salzburg)

With this audio-visual exhibition we want to transfer power back into the hands of survivors of sexual harassment who are students of the University of Salzburg. We want to offer them a platform to safely share their experiences without consequences. We are working towards building a culture where this issue not dealt with in isolation. In doing so, we hope to make the university a safer space for women and gender minorities.

Who? We invite individuals or groups who feel equipped to assist us with the communication design of this exhibition. You should be interested in exploring how audio-visual mediums can be used to communicate data, stories and art pieces. For the wider team, it is important to engage in an ongoing constructive dialogue with you on how to translate those materials into accessible, engaging, and meaningful formats. We expect everyone involved to handle the data and personal stories shared by survivors with care, respect, and confidentiality. You should understand the organizational effort involved in developing the exhibition and coordinate your work together with the wider team.

When? A team of students, psychologists, professors, and other stakeholders is already coming together to develop a project plan. The current working idea is to launch the exhibition in April 2027. The timeline and further details will be developed collaboratively as the project takes shape.

Where? We hope the project will take place across spaces at the University of Salzburg.
